

Most people find getting outside makes them feel healthier and happier...

even when that's not why they went out in the first place.

